

The ultimate Escape Room Experience!

Bring your educational institution to form your own team of adventurers; gather clues, solve puzzles, combine information, decipher secret meanings and trigger hidden mechanisms. Success can only be achieved by working together, and they will need to combine their brainpower to stay cool and profit from each other's strengths while the clock is ticking. An escape room is not only fun, but an excellent medium to encourage team members to communicate, work together and solve puzzles by thinking outside of the box.

We have 3 themed rooms: The Forgotten Temple, Bunker 51 and The Order. All rooms require teamwork and thinking to escape and can accommodate up to 7 players each. Teams can challenge each other to beat escape times, or they can race each other to see who can escape the room first!

Why an Escape room?

Escape games develop respect for contribution

Each player will be required to utilize their strengths to solve a particular puzzle or riddle. Our games are designed to utilize the strengths of different personality types – from mathematical and analytical to “out of the box” thinking. This encourages each member of the team to take part, and leverage the strengths of each team member.

Escape games build camaraderie through timed pressure

The pressure created for the teams to escape the room encourages the participants develop a common goal – to escape in time. Even if there are other people who have poor relationship in the workplace, the pressure will require each member to contribute so that they will get out of the room. The pressure will be a great aspect which will encourage people to work together as a team.

Escape games uncover communication styles

People will be required communicate in various ways. These skills can be developed to an extent where they will be applied in other areas of the organization. This plays a great role in making the organization reach great heights. The lessons which will be learned in the escape room scenarios can be applied in workplace meetings and presentations.

Encourages workers to listen to each other

For the participants of the escape room to be successful, they need to communicate with each other. They need to listen and encourage different views and opinions. This is a great aspect which will help the employees encourage communication in the workplace.

Makes the team realize contribution of the members

Each member will contribute towards a success in coming out of the room. It will be a great moment for employees who do not recognize the contribution of others to learn how such contributions are necessary for any team to succeed.
